Legislature Called To Draw New Lines

Capitol News Service
SACRAMENTO—The California State Supreme Court's order that the legislature reapportion the state's 38 congressional districts on a one-man, one-vote basis—but with population figures that are more than eight years old—has drawn little enthusiasm from the legislature.

Nevertheless, the lawmakers have been called into a special session Nov. 6 to realign the districts. The job would have to be done in 1971 in any event, but on the basis of the 1970 census.

Gov. Reagan met with legislative leaders Monday to discuss the problem. The court order provided that if the reapportionment is not accomplished by Dec. 7, the court will do the job itself.

THERE ARE some legislators, including Senator Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno), president pro tempore of the senate, who feel that, if the court insists on a reapportionment at this time, let the court do it. However, it's doubtful this sentiment will prevail.

For one thing, the members of Congress are not at all ready for the court to draw new lines. As fearful as they might be of drawing of new district boundaries by the legislature, the congressmen would prefer that route because they at least would have the chance to try to work out their own problems. With the California legislature as evenly divided as it is now, it's doubtful if a very partisan reapportionment—resplendent with gerrymandering—could get the votes necessary for passage.

"There's no justification for spending the time or money for reapportionment now," Burns said. "The end result would be as bad as what we may have now."

BURNS SAID the senate made its position clear during the 1967 session when it adopted a resolution against any reapportionment action until 1971.

"I'm still wedded to that," Burns said.

However, Burns said that, if a special session were called, he thought a reapportionment bill would be passed.

On the other side of the capitol and the other party, Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan (R-Tracy), Republican leader in the lower house, had much the same opinion. Monagan expressed disappointment at the court decision.

"WE ARE all interested in performing our constitutional duty in this matter," Monagan said. "It is regrettable that the court has made our task more difficult."

"Had we been able to wait for a new census in 1970, our efforts to implement one-man, one-vote reapportionment would have been based on accurate population figures," he said.

The 38 congressional districts, along with the 80 assembly districts, were reapportioned in 1961, as they have been every 10 years. The big shake-up of this decade, of course, was the U. S. Supreme Court order in June, 1964, which required state senators to be apportioned on the basis of population.
